ew Community held Employee Appreciation Day on May 26 to recognize staff members who have reached career milestones with the organization. The COVID-19 pandemic forced the postponement of the event so this year's gathering recognized employees who reached milestones in 2019, 2020 and 2021.

Honorees enjoyed a hot lunch and received certificates documenting their years of service. In addition, New Community launched a new rewards program that provided honorees with a monetary gift in the form of gift cards of their choice with the amount based on seniority.

New Community Chief Financial Officer/Interim Chief Executive Officer Elizabeth Mbakaya said she was glad to be able to host Employee Appreciation Day once again after more than two years of time apart.

"We are blessed and lucky to have you all as our employees," she told the honorees. "We do not take you for granted. We know that you all have many choices other than NCC."

She acknowledged the challenges presented by the pandemic over the past two years and thanked those in attendance for their flexibility and persistence.

"Every one of you is important to the success of NCC," Mbakaya said. "From those who ensure that our working areas are cleaned every day and who show up during snow storms, those who showed up every day during lockdown and enabled us to continue providing the critical services needed. Those who put their lives and those of their families in danger to show up to work during COVID and did not have the option of working from home."

She continued, "I am truly amazed and inspired by all of you. It is both an honor and a privilege to work alongside you. I hope we all get to stay around and celebrate our 40 years plus here at NCC."

New Community Director of Human Resources Benjamin Galvez was happy New Community was able to recognize employees in person again.

"It was great to finally hold this event after two years of postponement due to the pandemic and acknowledge our dedicated employees for their years of service to New Community and our mission," he said. "Along with recognizing years of service, this event provides an opportunity for staff to spend time with colleagues all across our network of services and introduce our new rewards program. I see this year's event as a step towards a renewed commitment to continue to serve our community."

At the event, New Community Board Member and Outreach Coordinator Madge Wilson received the Monsignor William J. Linder Award in addition to a certificate recognizing her 40 years as an employee of the organization in 2020. The award, named after the late founder of NCC, recognizes "unwavering commitment, dedication and valuable contribution to the mission of New Community."

NCC Director of Mission Frances Teabout called Wilson up to receive the award.

"It was my distinct honor to present Ms. Wilson with the Monsignor William J. Linder Award," Teabout said. "She has faithfully served NCC residents, employees and families for over 42 years. Every year, collecting and distributing hundreds of gifts, Ms. Wilson ensures every child connected to New Community has a wonderful Christmas. She has put our needs above her own, often riding many miles to collect turkeys for thanksgiving, Christmas trees for the holiday and supplies for back to school."

Wilson received a standing ovation when Teabout said, "Ms. Wilson, you said if Monsignor Linder was here, you would tell him well done and I am sure if he was here he would tell you well done."

Wilson said when she was hired for a role in New Community's Property Management Department, she didn't know she would remain at the organization for more than four decades. But she soon realized that NCC was special.

"My first day at work, I felt a sense of belonging. I knew that this would be my calling. I simply had that feeling," she said. "This job has truly been my mission in life and I feel as though I have fulfilled it. I pray that God will spare me many more years to do his will."

EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT: BRENDA BUESING

Brenda Buesing has worked at New Community for 25 years.

Prenda Buesing is a familiar face at New Community. She has worked at the organization for 25 years, first serving as the corporate receptionist for 10 years and now as Administrative Assistant for Human Resources.

In her current role, Buesing onboards new employees, completes employee verifications, works on unemployment claims, checks prospective employees' references, creates employee identification cards and keeps employee files up to date.

She has learned a lot during her time at

New Community, particularly with regard to technology. Prior to working at NCC, she didn't know how to use a computer. Now she uses it every day.

"After all these years, I just keep learning new things," she said. "I've amazed myself with how much I've learned in my older age."

Buesing spent 24 years working at supermarkets, first at Valley Fair and then ShopRite. She worked in various roles, including front-end attendant, cashier and courtesy counter. One of her customers encouraged her to apply for a job at Essex Valley Visiting Nurse Association. Buesing made the leap from supermarkets and worked at that organization answering phones and delivering mail. After four years there, New Community purchased Essex Valley Visiting Nurse Association and helped Buesing transition to the role of NCC corporate secretary after her position was eliminated.

A self-described people person, Buesing enjoys interacting with New Community employees in all departments.

"I like when I get a new hire and they're appreciative," she said. "They need a job and then they grow and stay and advance."

With her long tenure, Buesing has seen many employees launch successful careers at New Community.

"Brenda is a steady and consistent presence in the Human Resources Department for many years, taking on the role of onboarding employees. Her decades of service is an added value to her role as she has a very good understanding of NCC and our mission," said Director of Human Resources Benjamin Galvez. "It's a pleasure to work with Brenda and she continues to be an important member of the HR team."

Human Resources Manager Tina Howard enjoys having Buesing on the team as well.

"It is an absolute pleasure working with Brenda," Howard said. "She believes in the mission of NCC and it is evident in how she performs her duties and interacts with our employees."

Buesing has no plans to stop working.

"I don't know when I'll retire but not yet," she said. "I'm still learning things. I don't feel like sitting home."

Buesing grew up in Newark and currently lives in Rahway with her son, his partner and their children. In her free time, she enjoys listening to music, watching TV, taking walks, spending time with her grandchildren and shopping.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT: JAMES JACKSON

When James Jackson moved to Associates six years ago from Irvington, it was a homecoming. He grew up on Newton Street in Newark and his mother taught at Newton Street School for almost 40 years and served as district leader for more than two decades.

Jackson enjoys being back in Newark and spends much of his time helping his neighbors. He is a floor captain in the building, which means he checks on the residents of his floor and relays any messages they have to New Community staff members. He also assists with the food box distribution that occurs monthly in the building. In addition to prepping the food boxes and handing them out to residents in the building's Community Room, he will also help residents bring boxes up to their apartments if they need assistance.

"He helps put garbage out like the boxes and breaks them down," said Associates Resident Services Coordinator Anne Moran. "He is also a floor captain on the 13th floor and he helps any resident if they need help."

Jackson will run errands for neighbors in need.

"I go down to ShopRite and get water for them or go shopping for them," he said. "For me, that's my exercise."

Jackson likes to stay active. He does a lot of walking, whether it's to ShopRite or to visit his family members, many of whom are in Newark and East Orange. He has six children and more than 40 grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

At 73, Jackson is retired. He has had many different jobs, including working as a mover and working in the supply room at University Hospital.

Jackson's favorite part of living at Associates is the camaraderie he has found.

"The people that I've met. We know each other's family," he said.

He also said the building staff members make living at Associates enjoyable.

"We've got a nice staff," he said.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS: FASTER PROCESSING OF DISABILITY CLAIMS FOR PEOPLE WITH ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE

BY AMMY PLUMMER, SOCIAL SECURITY DISTRICT MANAGER, SPRINGFIELD AVENUE, NEWARK, NJ

Currently, more than 5 million Americans suffer from Alzheimer's disease. Since the onset of Alzheimer's can occur in people before they retire, it may strike during an individual's working years, preventing gainful employment as the disease progresses.

As a result, people with Alzheimer's disease and their caregivers must figure out how they'll pay for care. Our benefits and services are vital to people with early-onset Alzheimer's who are unable to work and have no other source of income.

For more than a decade, Social Security has included early-onset Alzheimer's disease in our list of Compassionate Allowances program. The program identifies debilitating diseases and medical conditions so severe they meet our disability standards. Compassionate Allowances allow for faster processing of disability claims for individuals with early-onset Alzheimer's disease and several other neurodegenerative disorders.

You can read more about our Compassionate Allowances program at www.ssa.gov/compassionateallowances. To learn more about how Social Security disability insurance works and to apply for benefits, visit our disability page at www.ssa.gov/disability. Please share these resources with friends and family.

LESLEY LESLIE: IF NOT NOW, THEN WHEN?

ow many times have you said to yourself, as soon as I am done taking care of "this" for my children or as soon as I am done taking care of "this" for my spouse, I am finally going to do "this" for myself? The "this" that applies to your unique circumstance may vary as it relates to the sacrifices that you make for others. However, the thing that is constant is the fact that so many people put off their own pursuit of happiness to tend to the needs and well-being of others. While such sacrifices are almost always done out of love, those feelings can turn to resentment if "your time" never actually comes to fruition.

Sometimes that "deferred" dream can be put off so long that it eventually dies. You stop trying and you stop thinking about your "this thing." You just think that the people who say they are "living their best life" are lying. Or that your life can never really be more than what it currently is. Well...that is not the case! You can pursue your dreams and you can live a better life. It may not come as easy for you as it appears to be for others. Nevertheless, it can be your reality if you commit to making it happen.

Going forward, consider this suggestion. Perhaps you can make a monthly commitment to set aside a few hours that you dedicate to the pursuit of your dream? Maybe you use the time to research how others have done the "this thing" that you want to do. Learn about what it may have taken for those individuals to achieve the dream. What are some of the mistakes they may have made that you can learn from? What are some of the initial steps they took that might be beneficial to you in your pursuit?

You are worth the effort and your dreams are worth the effort. Make yourself a priority, make a commitment to yourself, set aside your research time and start your journey to living your best life!
